A NATIONAL TOURNAMENT FOR WOMEN

The Morning Line has the pleasure to announce that a new USPA Women's Championship Series Tournament was created this week for a championship final next Spring at Outback Polo.

At one of this Friday, April 22nd's USPA meetings aimed at bringing more participation and involvement from women players in the USPA, a new Women's Championship Series Tournament format was introduced. The Championship Series format will consist of Qualifier Tournaments at the 3-6 goal level that will be played in the Summer and Fall of each year around the country, and an annual Championship Finals Tournament to be held in the Spring of the following year (handicap limit to be determined at a later date, but will be a minimum of 4 goals and 6 chukkers).

Qualifier Tournaments are open to any woman with a current USPA rating. To participate in the Annual Championship Finals all players must be qualified to enter. Qualification for the Championship Finals will be that each player must meet at least one of the following two criteria; a player must have played in a qualifier event (regardless of win/loss status after the event) or have a current USPA rating of 2 goals or above (in the year of the Finals).

If your club would like to host one of these Championship Qualifier Tournaments, all that is required is for the club to submit a USPA Sanctioned Tournament Application with the appropriate fees to the USPA for approval. Goose Creek Polo Club in Middleburg, Virginia has already offered to become the first club to host a qualifier event this summer. Outback Polo Club in Wellington, Florida has offered to host the first ever Women's Championship Finals Tournament to be held in the spring of 2006.

This series of tournaments will be the highest rated USPA women's polo in the United States today. If you would like to receive a copy of the Championship Tournament Series format or get more information about this tournament, please contact Sunny Hale at 405-329-8571. If your club is interested in hosting one of the Qualifier Tournaments you can receive a USPA Sanctioned Tournament Application Form from Amber Owen at the USPA (events@uspolo.org).

For more information on how you can become involved in helping to promote the growth of women's polo please contact USPA Committee Co-Chairs Leslie Ann Masterton at lamfy_ja@yahoo.com and Kris Bowman at polomio@aol.com.

Peter Grace returns to England after another great season at Palm Beach International. Anyone travelling to England who would like to watch or learn to play, see www.polo.co.uk or ring Ascot Polo Club on 01144 1276 858 545.

ually, David has started to digitally edit the pictures he's taken on the polo field. Rollin McGrail has had a busy year. A graduate of Parson's School of Design, Artist Rollin McGrail honored the National Horse Show in the Fall by becoming the first "Official Artist of the 121st National Horse Show". She recreated the traditional NHS poster in her own style and designed 4 original party invitations that were given out to exhibitors, horse owners, trainers and NHS officials.

Rollin's work is whimsical and fun. Alongside weekly contributions to the Washington Post, the New York Times and many National magazine such as Forbes and U.S. News and World Report, she has produced cards [two examples printed on this page: Love the party (below left) and Graduation (above)] sold at Beyond the Barn in Wellington, as well as framed edition prints which she exhibits at Beyond the Barn (561-3335255), Idlewild and in the ladies' room at the Players Club.

Susan Rubin, a life long equestrian, who competes at Grand Prix dressage and dabbles in Polo, is a decorator with a vision. When she opened Beyond the Barn, she combined her love of horses with her passion for decorating. Rubin, who is a Certified Interior Decorator and holds a BFA in Art from Penn State, saw a niche in the marketplace and decided she would enjoy running a horsey boutique in Wellington. "I had no idea it would turn into such a thriving and exciting business," says Rubin. The store is the hub for Rubin's exhilarating decorating business. Rubin has transformed the homes and stables of many of the nation's top equestrians. "I understand the lifestyle," explains Rubin, "Many of my clients don't even opt for an equestrian theme, but they know I can deliver a casual elegance that still reflects their lifestyle." And when Rubin isn't riding, decorating, or running her equestrian emporium, she is out spreading the gospel on equine design. Rubin writes a decorating column for a national equestrian magazine.

The polo horse and its incredible abilities are the foundation of what makes the sport so unique and all the more reason why it is time these great athletes receive the recognition they deserve. RULES OF POLO

Polo games last six chukkers of 7 minutes each, with halftime rest during third and fourth chukkers. A team has four players. Players come back with a fresh mount after each chukker.

Running the length on both sides of the field is an 11"- high wooden board that keeps the ball in play. If the ball goes out of bounds (on the sideline) the umpire orders the players to line-up in front of him and throw the ball in from that point where the ball left the field.

A typical defensive play for White. While Black is galloping forward on the line of the ball with the Right of Way, White—ahead of the play—can back the ball to the boards, away from his goal (but should stay on that side of the line of the ball to prevent being called on a crossing foul).

Bowl-in: a game always begins with the umpire throwing the ball towards the players lined-up on either side of the halfway line.

Players line-up again after a goal has been scored, and change ends to allow fairness of sides and conditions (wind, sun and ground), much like in tennis for example.

Penalty #4
60 yard Penalty Line

Penalty #3
40 yard Penalty Line

Penalty #2
30 yard Penalty Line

Teams change ends after each goal is scored.

Goal posts stand 8 yards (24 feet) apart

A polo field is 300 yard long and 150 yard wide, the size of nine football fields. The grass is kept as smooth and even as possible to allow the horses to safely gallop at speed up to 35 m.p.h.

The game is refereed by two mounted umpires (a third man is also officiating from the side). Fouls are called on dangerous riding, illegal bumping, crossing and bad hook, rough or abusive play and appealing for a foul. Most of the fouls, though, will be called on crossing the line.
